EASTERN CITY
SWEPT BY FIRE

(By Universal Service)

FALL RIVER, Feb. 3. More than eight thousand persons are of employment and facing privation in a temperature of 15 degrees above zero in this fire-stricken city tonight.

Scores of the injured which include more than 300 men and volunteers are still in hospitals for treatment for severe burns and other injuries.

The community is doubly threatened by an epidemic of typhoid and shortage of water. Dr. Ernest M. Morris, city health commissioner, and A. J. Weston, state engineer, announced after investigation today that Watuppa reservoir, the city's drinking water supply was lowered nine feet by fire use.

TYPHOID FEARED

As result of cross connections in mills and back pressure in water mains there is grave danger of a typhoid outbreak, the health expert said. Every precaution against pestilence was urged.

Citizens were advised to boil all drinking water for 20 minutes. The fire was conservatively estimated late today at 10 million, but insurance company experts declared the damage estimate to be as high as 25 million.

Twenty-seven buildings were destroyed by the fire which raged all night and 39 more structures were damaged all in the heart of the business district.

Surveying Of Standard Ave.
Paving Project
Nears Finish

Surveying of Standard avenue is almost completed, according to an announcement made here yesterday by an official in charge of the work. The survey is being made preparatory to widening and improving the thoroughfare which leads to the Richmond San Rafael ferry pier.

City Engineer Ed Hoffman will finish his plans and specifications for the work within a short time, it was indicated. Bids may be called for the work within three weeks.

The avenue will be widened and a number of the homes lining the street will be moved back. New paving will be installed to replace the present "wash-board" paving.

To cover the cost for this work it is planned to create an assessment district. The city has guaranteed property owners fronting on the street that their assessments will not exceed $4 per front foot. This means that about $10 a front foot will have to be raised in the rest of the district.

This work is part of the street improvement work planned by the city council. Plans for the opening of Pullman avenue are also progressing, it is understood.

Ira Vaughn Moves
To New Location

Announcement of the resignation of Ira R. Vaughn as secretary and manager of the California Guarantee Building and Loan association was made yesterday when Vaughn, manager of the Contra Costa County Title company, moved into new offices in the Elks building.

In the new location of the Contra Costa Title company there will be enlarged facilities including an escrow department for the accommodation of clients. Services will also include title insurance and land title matters of all kinds.

The present plant built over the old Pacific Sanitary plant is one of the largest in the country, assisting Kales and Creeger in showing the Rotarians around the plant were C. Vincent Kray, A. S. Adcock, and C. R. Radloff.

THE IDEAL WIFE

Seven young men of Astoria gave their pastor their opinion of what constitutes an ideal wife.

Seven varying answers packed with valuable comments.

"I want a girl who will be reliable and responsible, one who will be a leader."

"I want a girl who knows her purpose in life."

"My wife must be one with whom association will create in me an undying worship, a good housewife."

"I want a girl who will stand behind me in all circumstances."

And so on the list of wants strings merrily along. All are things that young men think they want.

What they will take is another matter.

Quite likely the girl to whom they will lose themselves, head and heart, body, soul and worldly goods, will be some fair creature not at all like the cold creature pictured by reason.

When persons destined to be mates meet there is an electric felar of interest; a fusing of souls; a determination to belong one to the other through life and beyond life to the very bounds of eternity.

Such trivial things as purposes in life are not considered.

Nor are girls who will be leaders; or who will make good housewives; or who will promise to stand firm in all circumstances.

Nothing counts then but love.

Such is the way of love.

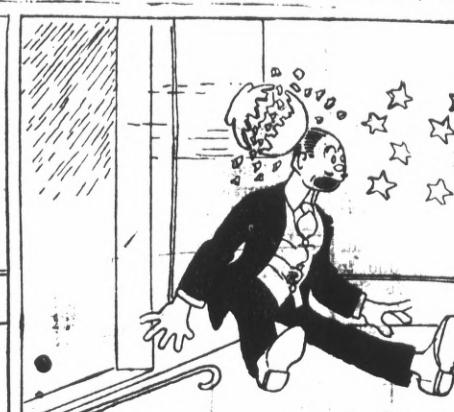

Foolish persons think it is silly.

Wise persons know that it is a divine ecstasy that transcends mere mortal ways and often sweeps aside mere human plans.

THE FARMER'S TARIFF

The farmer's troubles assuredly do not arise from paying prices enhanced by the tariff on manufacturers, for all that he uses in building house and barn, fencing and cultivating his acres is on the free list. His troubles have rather come from production of a surplus for export but his principal market is at home and every year it consumes a larger proportion of his produce. That growing market is the result of prosperity in the industrial and manufacturing field. The present protective tariff by stimulating industrial production, intensifies domestic competition which actually results in lower prices for manufactured goods. It builds up home industries thus preventing foreign producers from getting a strangle hold on the American markets. This results in increased employment for American labor at good wages increased markets for American products at good prices and lower prices for American consumers of the goods thus manufactured.

President Calles has done well so far, although there are not fewer than five potential rival candidates who have not yet enjoyed the benefits of the firing squad.—Lexington Herald.

How To EARN MONEY at HOME.

By Sara Spence

I have the greatest respect for you, my friends. I know from your letters that you are clever and, though there are not many who have told me they would like to do sculpturing, I am sure that fingers trained to fashion dainty and beautiful articles can do this. It is making those cunning dolls and animals out of soap and sponges. As every mother knows they are an invaluable help in getting Junior to wash his own hands. They make the daily bath an adventure and playtime. Soap sculpture is not hard to learn. One of my friends was making professional-looking ducks and pigs after only a week of effort. The sponges are even easier. They can be cut out like a piece of cloth, and with tiny buttons or wool for the eyes, and a bit of ribbon to define the waistline or neck—there you are! These little toys have vogue in the stores, but you can sell them more cheaply and still make a good profit, because there is no middleman.

The wholesale houses you will find in the telephone book, and I would advise you at the same time to ask them if you cannot work for them under contract. I would by all means advise you to canvass from house to house first with a few samples. E. M.

The wholesale houses you will find in the telephone book, and I would advise you at the same time to ask them if you cannot work for them under contract. I would by all means advise you to canvass from house to house but don't neglect the art shops and the department stores, too.

You may have difficulty in getting an order from them, but it will be worth while when it does come.

Shaking like a Sunday school superintendent taken in adultery—Harry L. Mencken.

Breakable as a lawyer's will made by himself—Tom Masson.

I am sorry to say I cannot do this because she did not send me her address. If you are thinking of making these bags I can tell you a little about it. The trick lies in having them open at the side, or a little below, where the neck is fastened to the bag. This last method gives the doll a cute, high-waisted effect.

Any firm, washable material is good to use and the name "Sally Socks" or "Hannah Hanky" embroidered across the front of the bag will tell what it is for.

I am an experienced lamp shade maker and would like to start my own line. I would like to know how to get in touch with a wholesale house for lamp shade material and wire frames.

I would also like to know whether I should canvass from house to house first with a few samples.

There is nothing more cruel to a person in love than to be encouraged by the one adored when there is no love in return.

It is much kinder when you realize that you no longer care for a person, or that you have made a mistake in thinking that you did, to let him or her to see it in some way than to go on and on until it is too late to escape.

A broken heart before a marriage is much more easily healed than a broken heart after a marriage. And a marriage which is not based upon mutual love is a mockery, to say the least. Marriage even under the best of conditions, requires the full co-operation of both the husband and no part nor inheritance with the wife to put it over. There are too many pitfalls into which the love of the Lord made by fire, it can be buried. And if one of the parties to the marriage does not love the other—then the Q. Better to make a clean break.

Dear Patricia Lee:

I have been going out with a young lady for about a year and a half, but lately I have not been satisfied with her company. What ever she says goes against me and makes me very nervous, so that I feel like leaving her then and there. We have never spoken of love or marriage, and I have not given her any encouragement.

While I have considered her only as a friend, I am afraid that she is falling head over heels in love with me. How shall I tell her that I don't care to go out with her any more? I know she will feel badly hurt—SINCERE.

Dear Sincere:

You are right in feeling that you should make a definite break with the girl, especially if, as you believe she is really in love with you. For to go on, especially when her very presence irritates you, would be the most unkind thing that you could do to her. You would only increase your own lack of affection for her. Even could you cover her up, she would be basing her hopes upon false grounds.

Breaking off will, of course, not be a pleasant task, but a clean surgeon's thrust would be better than to just let the affair die out. Write her a note, telling her that you find you do not care for her except as an impersonal friend, and that you do not feel that it is fair to her to take up any more of her time. While she was going with you she might be with some one whom she could eventually love and marry. Put it to her as separate as possible, but for the sake of her pride, do not hint that you realize that she cares for you. This will give her a chance to break, and you will probably find that in a little while everything will be all right.

THE JAZZ SINGER, starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

The New York Ghetto seethes with the activities of preparation for the celebration of Yom Kippur. Cantor Rabinowitz, who abominates jazz and teaches his son, Jake, the Synagogue songs, scolds the boy for his lack of interest in religious music. To his father's horror, Jake announces that he wants to sing in a theatre. A quarrel ensues and the child goes to a "beer garden" where, without his father's knowledge, he sings ragtime. Yudelson, the Cantor's friend, hears Jake singing and tells his father. The Cantor drags the boy home from the "garden" to punish him.

Now one by one the women in the balcony began to sway from side to side, moving to the rhythmic beat of the age-old chant. Slowly, in unison, held spellbound, like the great arm of some huge mechanism they seemed, as the lament swept full and powerful upwards; cried the cry of atonement. And among them sat a lonely figure with bowed head, weeping.

"I tell you, no, mama," the Cantor faced about determinedly and started to march the boy out to his punishment.

But Jake wriggled about, quite as determined as his father. There was something akin in their moods at that moment. Each was bent on upholding his end of the argument; each believed firmly in his belief; each was as determined as the other to see the thing through.

"I told you before, if you whip me again, I'll run away," Jakie announced doggedly, "and I'll never come back."

"Oh! Du schatz! Du undankbar!" The Cantor caught the boy by the shoulders and thrust him into the bedroom. He seized a strap, hung conveniently from a nail on the wall, and banged the door after him.

As the door shut in her face Mrs. Rabinowitz stopped. She clenched her hands in terror. Jakie had threatened before to run away from his father's beatings—and Jakie was not the little boy he had been only a few short years before. He was getting to the point where he resented the automatic rule which admitted of no questioning of the patriarchal law. She realized that it might be this time—or the next—or the next. But Jakie would go. Then she heard the smart snap of the strap and a sharp cry. She ran to him, her eyes over her ears to shut out the sound, and went back to her chair, her head buried in her hands.

The chubby man in the corner, who looked as though he might be a low comedian in a burlesque show, turned another page of "Variety" and completely immersed himself in the latest theatrical news of the country. A jaded blonde, with hard lines around her mouth, and a heavy make-up, yawned, crossed her legs, and revealed several additional inches of silk stockings that stretched tightly over the muscular limbs that prodded her a dancer. Her partner, a dapper youth with slick, black hair, wound himself and stretched.

Suddenly the door opened and Jakie rushed out, his eyes swollen and red, his body trembling. He ran to his mother and kissed her impulsively, but even as her restraining arms reached out to comfort him, he eluded their hold, threw open the door and made his way quickly to the street.

The Cantor emerged a little breathless, a little dazed. He looked at his wife. Then he pulled out his watch.

"It's time for the services, mama," he said turning to the wall behind him where hung the prayer shawl and the freshly washed and ironed robe of the Cantor of "Kol Nidre." With great deliberation he adjusted the robe, kissed the mazuzah and made his way toward the Synagogue next door, meekly followed by his wife.

Every pew downstairs was filled with men. The Cantor walked up the aisle toward the raised platform where his choir boys were taking their places. Mrs. Rabinowitz climbed the narrow stairs to the balcony and found her seat among the women. She tried to sit, but the tears persisted, and she moaned softly to herself. From where she sat she could see her husband and the choir boys, but there was no Jakie there now. Nor perhaps ever would be. She saw the Cantor speak to the Rabbi; adjust his prayer shawl, and then take his position on the platform. The congregation stilled; waited; waited on its God. Then—

Tom Meighan in Crook Play At Richmond

Thomas Meighan has played in the car never had a crook vehicle as powerful or vivid as this new Paramount melodrama which opened at the Richmond Theatre yesterday.

Charles and Jol's Furthman get even with the crook for this unusual gang of outlaws, gun for gun, and gang war of politics and including duty. They have done nobly by Meighan for it affords him opportunity for the most unusual characterization he has had in his career. The Miracle Man and as duplicates his earlier success in this new vehicle.

As a rule, soiled spots may be removed with a cloth dipped in turpentine or gasoline. Either will remove the surface wax which holds the dirt and will leave the floors bright and clean. The spots may then be retouched with liquid wax and still match the rest of the floor. These spots may be yield to the turpentine or liquid wax treatment, rub them with a cloth dipped in weak ammonia water and apply fresh wax. This method has been tried out with success by the state college of agriculture, and we are glad to pass the good word along to the housekeepers who read this column.

In the spring, after your floor has been put in shape and waxed by an expert, it will not be necessary to wax it often. If it is dusted with a dry rag and polished over with a dry brush, a wooden cloth or a dry cloth, it will stay in good condition.

Parts of the floor which are most used should be given a thin coat of wax when they first show signs of wear. The wax should dry for an hour, then it should be polished. Not rubbing is necessary around the worn area.

BOULDER DAM TEST WINS BY 13 TO 4 VOTE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Advocates of the gigantic Boulder Dam project to harness the turbulent waters of the Colorado river for flood control, irrigation and power development, scored the biggest victory of the legislative session today.

Passage of the swing Johnson bill, under which this national project will become a reality, was recommended by the House Agriculture committee by a 13 to 4 vote.

In order, however, to give competing states of the Colorado river basin final opportunity to compose their differences, the committee adopted a resolution by Representative Morrow, New Mexico, to delay submission of the favorable report to the House until March 12.

Under the resolution the Colorado river commission will be asked to resume immediately the negotiations seeking to have California, Arizona and Nevada reach complete agreement on the various phases of the project which have been in dispute. The four upper basin States will be asked to join in the conference.

Voting in opposition to the bill were: Reps. Leatherwood (R), Utah; Almond (D), Alabama; Winter (D), Wyoming; Douglas (D), Arizona.

The Morrow motion, which follows:

Provided, further, that the chairman is hereby instructed to forthwith communicate with the Colorado river commissioners of the states of Arizona, California, Nevada and New Mexico, and to advise them of the earnest desire of this committee that they at once resume negotiations, and negotiate with the upper basin States to reach and adjust, if possible, their interstate differences regarding the Colorado river as soon as possible, so that any agreement reached be promptly reported to this committee before March 11, 1928; that the same shall be reported by the chairman of each of said committees, laying what he believes to be the differences on which the States have been unable to agree.

ENGINEER TO HUSBAND SUES STAND TRIAL WOMAN BOXER FEBRUARY 21

Final information against the inventor stand. Although Judge McLean intimated yesterday that the information should be amended inasmuch as Lougheed cannot now be convicted of the more serious offense, he declared today the court could not direct the filing of an information alleging the lesser offense.

Since Lougheed cannot be convicted of the offense charged, in view of the previous jury's judgment, the jurors will be instructed that they cannot find the defendant guilty of any more serious charge than an attempt to commit statutory crime.

Miss Leighton charges that Lougheed attacked her during an automobile ride in the Contra Costa hills. In an appeal to the Appellate Court, Lougheed's conviction was reversed and a new trial was ordered.

EDITOR SCORES "PLASTIC DRs."

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—"Decorative surgery," was attacked today by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

His attack came in connection with the case of Sadie Holland, 30-year-old secretary, who is dangerously ill in Wesley Memorial Hospital after an unsuccessful attempt to have her bowed legs straightened.

After the operation, it was necessary to amputate the legs to halt gangrene. Blood transfusion was resorted to today to save the young woman's life.

Dr. Henry J. Schireson, plastic surgeon, today flatly denied that he had performed the "leg straightening" operation. His denial was made before John W. Folmer, chief inspector for the State Department of Education and Registration.

The operation was performed by S. D. Zaph, professor of surgery at the Chicago Osteopathic Hospital.

Dr. Shireson, shortly before the hearing, filed a $250,000 defamation suit against Archie Cohen, attorney, and Dr. Henry Millstone and the latter's wife, Anna, on charges growing out of the operation.

In his attack on "decorative surgery," Dr. Fishbein declared that the search for rejuvenation through face lifting is another of the follies of the slaves of the "cult of beauty."

Re-made noses, attempts to correct flopping ears and removal of scars, Dr. Fishbein condemns.

He admits, however, that plastic surgery was advanced through operations performed on maimed men during the World War, and says that it does have a place in medical science. But he adds that there are many chances in appearance which are better left undone.

In regard to Miss Holland, Dr. Fishbein said he believed the X-ray pictures prove that no operation was necessary. He added that the practice of cutting away surplus fat to straightened legs is one of the worst practices of the "beauty cult."

Senior patrol leader Hume Vaughan led the meeting last night.

First Christians And S. P. Baptists Win Cage Games

Two fast games were played on the local "Y" courts last night which resulted in win for the First Christians over the San Pablo Baptists by an 18 to 16 score, and a win for Presbyterian over the Community M. E.'s by 23 to 15. The boys played good hard ball all through both games and none of the contestants was sure that they had the game won until the final whistle had blown.

San Pablo Baptists lined up: H. Sandwick and C. Pinto at forward; Wilson at center; and Motoza and R. Sandwick at guards. Goldsworthy was their only substitute.

Christians had Craig and Christian, forwards; Moore, center; and Sprague and Livermore guards.

Community M. E.'s: Lockwood and Hiller, forwards; Rowe, center; and Foreman and Bennett, guards. Redfield, Johnson, and Lockwood were substitutes.

The operation was performed by S. D. Zaph, professor of surgery at the Chicago Osteopathic Hospital.

Dr. Shireson, shortly before the hearing, filed a $250,000 defamation suit against Archie Cohen, attorney, and Dr. Henry Millstone and the latter's wife, Anna, on charges growing out of the operation.
